Marks of a Person Who Possesses Integrity

1. What you see is what you get. Outer and inner are connected, parts of one whole.
2. A person who has basic integrity honors commitments and keeps promises. If they say they will be there, they are. If they promise to do something, they do it.
3. A person with integrity is truthful. You can trust what they tell you.
4. Consistency. Someone who has integrity isn't your new best friend one week and then next week doesn't seem to know you.
5. Integrity doesn't mean that a person never makes mistakes. But a person with integrity accepts responsibility for his or her own mistakes or failures and does what's in his or her power to put things right.
6. Related to No. 5, people with integrity are slow to blame others for their problems or frustrations. They aren't whiners.
7. People of integrity care about the work, the mission or the product and about a job well done, and not just about what they personally will get out of it in terms of money, recognition or advancement.
8. While receptive to learning and change, people of integrity are skeptical of simple answers to complex problems, and not inclined toward fads or buzzwords.
9. A person of integrity minds his or her own business. This doesn't mean isolation. It means paying attention to your own responsibilities and work rather than freely inserting yourself into the responsibilities of others.
10. People with integrity know that they aren't perfect and that sometimes in this life it's not possible to avoid disappointing or hurting others. Because of this, they are able to forgive, and they recognize their own need for forgiveness.

Integrity isn't something you get at a weekend conference. It's gained slowly, taught by example and experience, in families, schools and religious congregations and communities where it flourishes.

Announcements

A full list of announcements is available at www.asburytulsa.org/announcements.

Have you not been receiving ministry communication?

Do you feel like you are out of the loop regarding events happening at Asbury?

Do you wish you were more involved?

If you answered “yes” to any of these questions, you should sign up to receive the latest Asbury communication on ministry events and updates.

It’s easy; just go to myasburytulsa.org to register.

You will be able to:

Joining Asbury Luncheon, TODAY

If you are interested in joining Asbury or finding out more about us, please plan to attend the Joining Asbury luncheon today, from 12:15–2:15 in the Community Life Center (CLC). Child care is available for 6 weeks to sixth grade. Walk-ins are welcome.

We are so excited you have chosen to worship with us here today.

Life is full of challenges and struggles, and what a strength it is to be around people who will support you through the difficulties. Yet, it is also a great joy when those people also surround you in the times of victory as well! Victories may seem to be so short in duration while the struggles seem to last "forever." Isn't it good to know that in either situation you have someone to walk through those times with you?

Without a doubt, God is the One who is there for us each step of the way and has promised never to leave us or forsake us. People will fail you, and probably it has happened numerous times to this point, but rest assured, God NEVER fails! We may not always understand His ways, but if we did, then He wouldn't be God!

We encourage you to enter in to this time with a heart that is open to discovering all Jesus wants to do in your life both today, and in the days, weeks, and months ahead!
